India's trendsetting show gains momentum

Signature has gained prestige and stature as the show which jewellers must attend to keep abreast of the jewellery market – the new styles and collections, the price points, what's trending and in demand. Being compact in size, the show offers jewellers the opportunity to have in-depth discussions with India's best manufacturers and meet many new suppliers. It has also made a mark for its exclusive ambience and hospitality.

No wonder, it is now considered India's most important jewellery fair after IIJS.

Already, far in advance of the event in February, over 6000 visitors have registered for Signature 2014. No one wants to miss this much-awaited trade show!

Visitor Voices

We are diamond and gemstone wholesalers, and for us India is a very good place to find reliable suppliers for long-term partnerships. Signature is much smaller than IIJS but we still can find the right products that are interesting for the Russian market. This show is also a good place to visit our partners.

Daria Baranova,
Kaletta, Moscow, Russia

Signature helps us increase our commercial relations and our business volumes. The exhibitors provide us with lots of opportunities and advantages during the show.

Cemal Gülceç,
Sidra Jewellery, Turkey

At Signature I expect to see a lot of new manufacturers and suppliers showcasing unique jewellery at competitive prices, which makes it worthwhile for jewellers from abroad to buy direct from the source. We seek opportunities to expand our growing business even further. India has really taken over in design and manufacturing.
